● Kashmir Winter Travel – Contingency Disclaimer

Please note that Kashmir, especially during the winter season, experiences extreme weather conditions and operates with limited accessibility in certain regions. Many routes – particularly those leading to destinations like Gulmarg, Pahalgam, and other mountain areas – are dependent on weather conditions and may be affected by heavy snowfall, road closures, black ice, landslides, or other unforeseen natural events.

In the event of such disruptions, the group may be required to halt their journey at the point of obstruction or adjust travel plans for safety reasons. The duration of any delay is unpredictable and completely beyond human control. These situations may lead to changes in the planned itinerary, including delays, route alterations, missed sightseeing, or the inability to reach certain destinations as scheduled. In rare and extreme circumstances, due to weather conditions or limited availability of accommodation – especially during peak winter travel periods – guests may be required to stay at alternate locations or wait in nearby areas until conditions improve. While Trekkers United will make every reasonable effort to manage situations smoothly and prioritize guest safety, we shall not be held responsible for any inconvenience, itinerary changes, delays, or missed experiences caused by weather conditions or other unavoidable circumstances beyond our control.
